

Interior States

BY BARI KWOK

The Curiosity Living Room
for active discovery

Dimensions: 80 sq ft
Hours Spent in Room: 10 hours

A bright open space filled with small wonders. Every corner holds a new question. This is the place to explore, connect dots, and see what fun ideas you can find.

The Impatient Hallway for moments of pacing and waiting

Dimensions: 30 sq ft
Hours Spent in Room: 3 hours

This is the in-between place, where you are always leaving. Keys jangle nervously in your hand. Your foot taps as you check the clock again, feeling the wait is always too long.

The Calm Bedroom
for quiet restoration

Dimensions: 65 sq ft
Hours Spent in Room: 8 hours

Here, the world feels far away. Let your thoughts dissolve, and breathing slows. Everything softens into quiet. It is a gentle escape, as if time has paused just for rest.

The Contentment Kitchen for simple satisfactions

Dimensions: 50 sq ft
Hours Spent in Room: 2 hours

A warm place where good smells welcome you. It feels like something is always cooking quietly, making everything okay. There is no rush, only the simple joy of a satisfying moment.

The Anxiety Basement
for uneasy reflection

Dimensions: 25 sq ft
Hours Spent in Room: 1 hour

A dim, cluttered space where worries collect in piles. What if this happens? What did that mean? Thoughts spin in circles. It becomes hard to breathe deeply, so it's best not to stay long.